TERRAZZO

A quick glimpse at Sergio Tacchini's AW18 line.

Established in 1966 by Italian tennis player, Sergio Tacchini, the eponymous sportswear brand has become world renowned for their mix of elegance and athletic wear, as well as for dressing some of the most famous tennis players ever. And we mean the most famous – think John McEnroe, Pat Cash and Novak Djokovic, to name a few.

Now they're dropping their Terrazzo capsule collection, full of bright colours to keep our summer memories alive. Comprising of a polo shirt, two outwear pieces and a pair of trousers, the collection was inspired by "Venetian Terrazzo", aka the iconic floor tile seen in Ancient Greece and Imperial Rome which has been reworked into the eye-catching pattern.

"You cannot be serious!" I hear you cry. Well you better start believing it.
